"DIXIE'S" AUTHOR DIES AT HIS HOME IN KENTUCKY

William S. Hays, Gifted Song
Writer, Passes Away
at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., July 26.—Colonel William S. Hays, author of the original "Dixie," veteran river editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, poet, song writer and musician, is dead at his home in this city at the age of 70. He was stricken with paralysis ten days ago. Colonel Hays was born in Louisville July 19, 1837, and with the exception of his college days and the time spent in the south as a war correspondent in the civil war, all of his life was spent here. He wrote more than 500 ballads, many of which became famous.

Colonel Hays always claimed the authorship of the original words of "Dixie," and said that he was responsible for the arrangement of the music. His version of "Dixie" was written before the outbreak of the civil war, but the words were considered so sedition that the writer was arrested and compelled to change them. By that time "Dan" Emmett, the minstrel, had written his song and his publisher had it copyrighted.

While in the south as a war correspondent Colonel Hays became captain of the Gray Eagle, a steamboat on the Mississippi river and while engaged in this work he wrote the song, "My Southern Sunny Home."

For this work he was arrested by General Butler, who was in command of New Orleans. He was soon afterwards released, however. On his return to Louisville Colonel Hays again took up newspaper work, in which he continued until his recent illness. He is survived by a widow and two children.
